

LARRY CULP:

GE'S

GREEDY BILLIONAIRE

CEO IN THE MAKING

As we fight for fair wages and healthcare, GE CEO Larry Culp is on track to become one of America's richest executives, with a $300 million stock payout from General Electric. This massive payout will help make Culp a billionaire, securing an obscene amount of generational wealth for his family while we struggle to secure our own futures.

Culp's wealth isn't built by chance—it's built on the hard work, sweat, and sacrifices of every GE Aerospace worker who keeps production running. We're the ones facing tough conditions and relentless pressure, while Culp walks away with millions. GE Aerospace profits from billions in government contracts—funded by our tax dollars—yet only a select few at the top see those rewards. The rest of us are left wondering if we'll ever have enough to retire or cover healthcare costs.

If Culp can be pushed into billionaire status by his lavish compensation from GE, then GE can afford to pay us fair wages, provide decent healthcare, and offer retirement security. We're the ones moving GE Aerospace forward—it's time we got our fair share of its success.
